IEETING OF THE NON-POLITICAL ALLIANCE CONVENTION.

The Day Spent in Wrangling Over a Resolution Denunciatory of Macune and His Methods.

formers at the Ocala Gathering Again Shown Up by Various Orators.

The President of the Kansas Alliance Confesses to Conniving at a Fraud for the Sake of Harmony-The New York Democratic Convention Transacts the Usual Preliminaries and Adjourns. Political Points.

St. Louis, Sept. 15. — The anti-third party and anti-sub-treasury wing of the National Farmers' Alliance met in convention at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Not more than one-half the number of dele-gates expected made their appearance. The convention was called to order by U. S. Hall, ex-president of the Missouri Aillance, and a temporary organization was effected by the election of U. S. Hall as temporary chairman and William B. Murry of Corsicana, Texas, as temporary ry of Corsicana, Texas, as temporary secretary.

The committee on credentials was then appointed and while they were consulting "Dick" Dalton, a Democratic aspirant to the governorship of Missouri, addressed the convention on the aims and objects of the Alliance. He was opposed, be said, to the government land loon scheme. It would be the most injurious movement to the farmers that could be inaugurated. The Farmers' Alliance should return to its first principle—that of protection for the farming interests, but not in a political party. The necessary protection must be obtained through the ballot—not through the formation of a new party, designed to frame laws to protect the farmers at the expense of other and, perhaps, as vital interests.

The committee on credentials reported that all the delegates in the hall were entitled to seats. The report was adopted. The temporary organization was made permeant.

A motion was made to appoint a com-mittee on resolutions and permanent organization, with instructions to report a mittee on resolutions and permanent organization, with instructions to report a plan of organization and the policy to be pursued in the future. This motion brought about a long and at times animated discussion. Some of the delegates contended that a plan of permanent organization was out of the question altogeter. They were not here for the purpose of forming a new Alliance, as the delegates present were already members of the national organization, "and why in the name of God," said one, "should we want another organization?"

It was finally decided to appoint a committee of five to outline a pian of procedure, to be presented to the convention in the afternoon, and at 1:20 o'clock the convention took a recess until 2 o'clock.

Afternoon session.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session was about as lively as any convention could be. As soon as the delegates were seated Chairman Hall announced the committee on resolutions, as follows: W. S. McAllister, Mississippi, (chairman); Dr. Ransom, Tennesee; C. A. Hiller and J. F. Davidson, Missouri; R. G. Bragg, Texas; W. B. Wilsey, Illinois, and A. J. McConnell, Iowa. It was moved and carsied that the committee immediately prepare a platform.

During the absence of the committee Dr. W. Pope Yeamans of Boone county, Missouri, was called on for an address. The doctor took up the subject of the goveroment land-loan scheme and the subtreasury fad and dissected them to the evident satisfaction of the delegates, who ap-The afternoon session was about as live-

Regarding the sub-treasury plan, by which the farmers could store their grain and rethe farmers could store their grain and re-ceive 80 per cent. of its value, as proposed by the Ocala platform, he asked the con-vention who would make the price of grain. Was it the government, the far-mer or the speculator? "This sub-treas-ury folly," he said, "would only place the tarmer in the hands of such men as Old Hutch, who would bull or bear the market fort set saided them, hear it whom they ust as it suited them-bear it when they wanted to buy from the farmer and bull it when they wanted to dispose of it."

In regard to the land-loan scheme, he said that it was illogical to suppose that a farmer would derive any benefit from borfarmer would derive any benefit from borrowing from the government. In the first place, suppose the farmer meets with a succession of reverses while the land is mortgaged to the government. When the interest is due he would have to pay it.
He would not be dealing with a country

The government agent would say, "Pay up or I will have to sell your land," and the poor devil of a farmer, who has not a cent in the world, would be thrown out of house and home through the besutiful government land-loan scheme which the politicians, backed up by the capitalists, are trying to force the rank and file of the Alliance to adopt. Alliance to adopt.

Dr. Yeamans was followed by several other crators, who were received with lution as follows: "Resolved, That we denounce C. W. Macune and his corrupt methods, together with the acts of his tools and henchmen, as being a disgrace to the order and a stench in the nostrils of all honest men who know of their corruption and villainy."

This led to a heated debate. Delegate This led to a heated debate. Delegate Wade of Tennessee immediately moved that this clause be stricken out, and he went on to give the reasons for his motion. He said that the convention had not been called to make personal attacks upon any person or persons. While he was personally confident—in fact, knew that Macane was one of the most corrupt men in the country, he was not prepared to go on record in a convention which was called in the interests of harmony in an attack on one of the leaders of the Alliance. It was well known that the Ocala investigating committee had adopted a report exonorcommittee had adopted a report exonor-ating Macune; that the report was merely a whitewash; that Macune was guilty of he, "I move that the section be stricken out."

Immediately there were a dozen delegates on their feet yelling for recognition. Dr. Yeamans was finally recognized. He made a conservative speech appealing to the better judgment of the delegates, and asking that they think twice before adopting the resolution. "It will have the effect," he said, "of undoing the very work we came here to do."

Chairman Hall then called McClintock of Missouri to the chair, and, taking the floor, spoke against the motion to strike out. There was, he said, nothing personal in his desire to have Macune arraigned for his misdeeds. Every Alliance man knew that he had opposed Macune from the first, and he would fight him to the bitter end. He was a tool of politicians and monopolists; he had accepted bribes from them, and why should the Alliance, which was trying to reform the government, have a corruptionist at its heim? It was the most illogical and ill-advised policy that could be conceived of which was trying to reform the government, have a corruptionist at its heim? It was the most illogical and ill-advised policy that could be conceived of.

W. S. McAllister of Mississippi, chairman of the committee, said that he had no malice against Macune. But corruption must be routed. Macune had done or was doing for the Alliance what Warren Hastings had done for India. "Do you want such a man at the head of your Alliance? I cannot believe it, and I pray that the motion to strike out may be defeated. Macunism is the fatal octopus encircling with its slimy coils the escutcheon of the order, stifling its purity and destroying its virtue."

Wade got another whack at the resolution, and then Murray of Texas jumped into Macune in the most vigorous style. He gave him the worst drubbing imaginable, with the possible exception of Goodman of the same state, who sailed into Macune and scored him unmercifully. Murray got to discussing state affairs, however, and calls for order took him off his feet, but he defiantly arose and moved to table the motion to strike out the censuring clause.

Then Wade moved to amend his motion to strike out by stating that "We denounce the chairman of the Ocala convention and the editor of the National Economist,"

A motion was made to adopt the report of the committee as presented, but this was declared out of order, the motion be-fore the house being to amend the original report. Several orators in the meantime were trying to get the floor, but confusion were trying to get the floor, but confusion reigned supreme.

Finally order was restored and Murray of Texas moved the previous question. The motion was defeated. A motion to adjourn here failed, and after further debate Wade's motion to amend was defeated by a large majority.

The question then recurred on the adoption of the committee's report, but a Missourian arose and made such an earnest plea for postponment, finally winding up by moving to adjourn, that a dozen seconds came from as many quarters of the hall, and, with the platform still before the convention, an adjournment until 9 o'clock tomorrow was taken.

The opinion prevails among the leaders of the present movement that the platform still before the convention, an adjournment until 9 o'clock tomorrow was taken.

"I have been in correspondence with Frank McGrath," said he, "for over a year. While I have not asked him point-blank the question as to the reliability of the statement, upon the appearance of the interview I wrote and thanked him for the way in which he upheld me in my desire to put Macune out of the Alliance and where he could do no harm."

Madrid, Sept. 15.—The floods which caused so much damage, and which it is already known have resulted in the loss of thousands of lives, have been generally in the south of Spain. The damage done is simply terrible in its extent. Several trains were derailed and the railroad track and railroads everywhere washed away. In the province of Toledo the rush of the water from the Consuegra river was so sudden that hundreds of people were drowned in their beds. The aspect of the town is positively frightful. Four hundred bodies have already been recovered and almost a hundred corpses can be seen floating in the swollen rivers. The wine and grain crops are destroyed throughout the flooded sections of the country.

The overflowing of the Consuegra threatens to cause further damage. Twothirds of the houses are practically destroyed. An estimate classed as moderate, and which is within rather than over the actual number, places the total death list at 2,000. A large number of corpses still rest where they were found. Unless soon interred an epidemic of fever is feared. The municipal and government authorities are exerting themselves to the utmost in order to relieve the extreme distress existing.

Two lads named respectively Crawford and Shearen were arrested here today, charged with murdering one of their comrades, a boy also aged 8. Upon being taken to the station, Crawford and Shearen confessed. They said that they wanted to steal the clothes of the murdered boy, and so pushed him into the water, intending to drown him. When the poor little fellow managed to scramble out, Crawford and Shearen pushed him in again, and then Crawford went down on his knees, and, kneeling on the drowning boy's head, held him under the water until he finally ceased strugging.
